Portuguese officials said that the talks may establish a pattern for negotiations for cease-fires in Angola and Mozambique, paving the way to end 12 years of Airl-can wars and to dismantle Portugal's 400-year-old colonial empire in Africa.

After his meeting with the insurgents, Mr. Source conferred for 90 minutes with British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan and. David Ennals, minister of state at the Foreign and Com-monwealth Office.

British officials said that Mr. Soares provided details of Portugal's plats for self-determination in its three. African territories, They said that Mr. Callaghan offered British diplomatic help,

The British spokesmen said that the London officials and Mr. Soares also discussed Rhodesia "in a general way," although there was no mention of economic sanctions against the breakaway former British colony, The British officials said however, that Mr. Callaghan hopes to persuade the new Portuguese government to close the sanctions' loopholes through Mozambique which were tolerated and even encouraged by the former dictatorship in Lisbon.

Before beginning his talks with the Guinea-Bissau rebels' sevenman delegation yesterday, Mr. Soares said that his first goal was to get agreement on a ceasefire. Once this was achieved, he said, the insurgents would be invited to participate openi: in political activities in the territor: Next, he said, inhabitants of the territory would be allowed to determine Portumese Guinea's political structure and ultimately.

According to these reports, Miss Furtseva who is married to Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firyubin, built the dacha in the name of her daughter with state building materials she got at bargain wholesale prices. Soviet sources said that she had been ordered to make large financial repayments to the state.

But if her name is missing as expected, when the list is complete, it would confirm a fall from grace for a political figure who was, under Nikita Khrushchev, a member of the ruling Presidium, and for 20 years a deputy in the Supreme Soviet, There has been a persistent rumor this spring that Miss Furtseva will be replaced by Yevgeny Tyazhelnikov, the long-time leader of the Komsomol Youth organization, who was recently re-

Nixon Mideast Visit Seen Both Likely and Soon

MIAMI, May 26 (NYT).-White House officials said yesterday that President Nixon was likely to visit the Middle East soon, possibly before or on his way to Moscow next month for a meeting with Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet leader.

Ronald Ziegler, the press secretary, said there was a "distinct possibility" that Mr. Nixon would stop in the Mideast "in the near future." He said no definite plan or schedule had been agreed on. No indication was given when or where in the Middle East the visit would be.

Mr. Ziegler would not state the purpose of Mr. Nixon's Mideast visit, but he noted that the President had been receiving messages from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on his peace mission there. Presumably the President's visit would bear on any agreement that Mr. Kissinger may achieve between Israel and Syria.

The press secretary said in a briefing that Mr. Nixon now expected to arrive in Moscow about June 24, but he emphasized that this, too, was not certain. There was speculation, which Mr. Ziegler did not discourage, that Mr. Nixon would leave Washington on June 22 and stop in Brussels for meetings with West European leaders at NATO headquarters before proceed-

Evidence Said to Prove Payoff Followed Nixon's Talk of Hun!

By James M. Naughton

Committee has what its investigahat a bush-money payment $75,000 to Howard Hunt jr. was initiated on March 21, 1973, a few hours after President Nixon told John Dean 3d that such a payment would "keep the cap on the bottle" of the Watergate scandal.

The evidence, pinpointing the date of the payment to Hunt, a convicted Watergate conspirator. is based on the travel records of Sherman Unger, a Cincinnati lawyer and former Nixon administration official,

Informed of the contents of this article, Ronald Ziegler, press sec-retary to President Nixon, charged that the information had been "leaked to create a negative inference against the President," who, he said, had never authorized such a payment.

Mr. Unger confirmed, in a telephone interview this weekend, that he was the so-called "mystery witness" whose dinner en-gagement in Washington on March 21, 1973, was the crucial clue to determining the date of the payment to Hunt.

Mr. Unger's testimony about the dinner party, along with his travel records substantiating the oate of the dinner, were central elements of evidence that led a federal grand jury here to indict seven former associates of the President on March 1 for allegedly obstructing the Watergate investigation.

More important, the travel records—receipts for an airline flight from Cincinnati to New York and a New York hotel bill, along with Mr. Unger's pocket appointment book-represent the key to a potential article of impeachment charging President Nixon with obstruction of justice The records were turned over to the Judiciary Committee on March 25 by the grand jury and cover-up attempt. Hunt and Frederick LeRue, the former Nixon re-election committee official who served as a gobetween in the hush-money payments, both testified at the Senate Watergate hearings that they could not recall the precise date of the March payment.

But LaRue subsequently told a Watergate grand jury that he remembered that the payment had been made the same night he had dinner with a personal friend, whom he identified to the grand jury as Mr. Unger.

Three members of the Judiciary Committee disclosed separately. and Mr. Unger confirmed in the telephone interview, that his travel records proved that the dinner - ironically, in LaRue's apartment at the Watergate complex-was on March 21.

Fulbright Is Likely Watergate Victim in Primary Tomorrow

Gov. Dale Eumpers

By Lou Cannon

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 26 (WP).-Two political assumptions, one peculiar to Arkansas and another that is widely shared across the nation in the wake of Watergate, are being put to the test here Tuesday in an unusual Democartic primary that seems likely to end the career of Sen. William Fulbright,

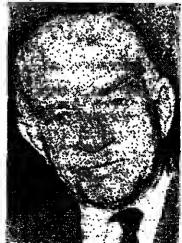

The larger assumption is that all congressional incumbents, Democrats as well as Republicans, face the electoral retribution of voters who have lost faith in the integrity and effectiveness of their government. This cal-culation has been the basis of a smooth, well-ordered campaign conducted against Sen. Fulbright by popular Gov. Dale Bumpers, who says that "the people of Arkansas are disappointed that stated this way hy a veteran politician here: "Good Arkansans spend their lives cussing out the Arkansas Gazette and Bill Fulhright for being too radical and internationalist. But every day they read the Gazette and every six years they vote for Fulbright." Arkansans are still reading the Gazette (circ. 140,000), which regularly lends its best efforts to the denunciation of Gov. Bumpers and to the celebration of Sen. Fulhright. However, every professional sounding in this state, including the senator's own private polls, indicate that Sen. Fulbright appears to be failing in his efforts to gain a sixth term.

Lisbon Coup Awakes No Echoes in Macao

MACAO (WP) -The April coup in Portugal may have brought vest political changes in the homeland and stirred new thoughts of independence in its African territories, but nothing of the sort is even contemplated for this small and slightly decadent colonial peninsula on the south roast of China.

Views of Peking

Portugal could not give Macao its freedom if it wanted to. The Portuguese have held these six square miles for 400 years but Peking considers both Portuguese Macao and British Hong Kong as Chinese territories temporarily occupied by foreign powers. The Chinese population, which accounts for about 98 percent of Macao's more than 300,000 inhabitauts, reacted not at ail, For them a coup in Lisbon means nothing. Only the Portuguese were excited.

There are probably no more than 12,000 persons with Portuguese passports in all Macao and fewer than 1,000 of them were born in Portugal. But even so, the leading Portuguese newspaper, Gazeta Macaense, increased its circulation from 500 to 1,600 in a few days, and in the Solmar cafe, where the Portuguese gather, it is said that the coup replaced cuckoldry as a subject for conversation for at least a

Portugal's Textile Workers Get Pay Rise, End Walkout

LISBON, May 26 (UPI) -- About 10,000 textile workers today accepted wage increases and agreed to end a 13-day strike. This eased a labor situation that threatens Portugal's shaky economy.

Foreign diplomats have defined Mr. Sadat's new policy as "de-Nasserization." The President and his aides reject the term. They say that Mr. Sadat is giving the Egyptian nation a modern cast, but that, far from breaking with the Nasserite revolution of 1952, he is only "correcting past mistakes" while preserving the valid aspects of Nasser's policies.

Mr. Sadat's contention is that the Egyptian Army's crossing of the Suez Canal in the October war was a liberating event that ended Egypt's humiliation and paralyzing self-doubt. It made Egypt strong enough to open its doors to the outside world and devote itself to the task of saving its desperately ill economy.

Economy Is Weathering The Storm, Nixon Says

By John Herbers

MIAMI, May 26 (NYT).-President Nixon told the American people yesterday that the material quality of life in this country had been maintained at an "unparalleled level" despite inflation and unemployment and that there are "encouraging signs today that the worst is behind

"The storms are abating," Mr. Nixon said in a nationwide radio address in which he sought to explain recent economic difficultics and how his administration campaign, Sen. Fulbright has been unable to disassociate himself from what Gov. Bumpers calls "the problems of Washington," a phrase embracing inflation, the energy shortage, Weternete and diminishing confidence

"He is trying to make Watergate rub off on me." the 69-yearold Sen. Fulbright complains. Many Arkansans think that

Gov. Bumpers is succeeding in this aim, assisted both by his own personable campaigning and b. Sen. Fulbright's increasingly strident attacks on the governor, Frustrated by Gov. Bumpers's refusal to debate bim, Sen. Fulbright has tried to turn the unpopularity of Washington politicians in general and President Nixon in particular to his own advantage.

"Nothing would make Richard Nixon happier than a Fulbright affect ou May 28th." proclaims one of Sen. Fulbright's ads. The anti-Nixon tone of the Fulbright campaign is based upon a poll by political scientist Jim Ranchino of Arkadelphia, which shows that two out of tliree Arkansans now disapprove of Mr. Nixon. The President won overwhelmingly in Arkansas when he was re-elected in 1972. When the campaign started two months ago, a private poll rilowed that the 49-year-old governor had an incredible 91 percent favorable job rating, a find-ing that drove the Fulbright media experts to the unusual actie of praising Gov. Bumpers by name on television while conending that be was unqualified to be senator.

The Fulbright ads concede more than Gov. Bumpers's popuare an admission of Sen. Fuloright's own unpopularity with Arkansans, many of whom view ilm as remote, aging and more nterested in international probems than in his home state. A random poll of 30 Arkansas cters produced 14 who volunteered criticisms of Sen. Fulbright and only nine who said they planned to vote for him. "He's been there too long" and "He's out of touch" were two of the recurring criticisms. Two voters, both in their 20s. said that Sen. Fulbright "talked down to people."

Fulbright's hopes. One of his strategists saye that he must win the black community by a 3-1 vote in order to defeat Gov. Bumpers. A voter turnout of 500,000 is expected, with a fifth to a sixth of it black. Sen. Fulbright is still remembered among some blacks for his loog opposition to civil rights legislation and even for his declaration in his first campaign in 1944 when he said, "I am not for Negro participation in our pri-mary elections and I do not approve social equality." But he gained black support by opposing the nomination of Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court in 1970 and he won 70 percent of the black vote against segregationist James Johnson in 1968.

"For some people," he said, "these changes have meant a severe strain on the family budget, shorter working hours and even the loss of 2 job. But the majority of Americans have come through this period well." Furthermore, he said, there are signs that the administration's economic policies are paving off. Thus, there will be no major change in policy. The minor changes Mr. Nixon announced are as follows:

· He appointed Kenneth Rush, the deputy secretary of state, as counselor to the President for economic policy, to coordinate economic policies throughout the administration. Mr. Rush who will have cabinet rank, will mediate disputes between various officials. particularly Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

· He urged Congress to set up permanent unit to succeed the Cost of Living Council, the authority of which will expire on June 30. He said that what was needed was a "small, flexible organization" in the White House, "cost of living task force" that would monitor wages, prices, in-dustry bottlenecks, shortages and other factors that bear on inflation. The task force would have only advisory authority.

· He has directed the Council of Economic Advisers to establish "a high-level group" to study the prospect of a shortage of capital for investment, Mr. Nixon said this was as serious a threat to the economy as the shortage of foods and materials. This advisory group would be charged with devising measures to deal with

Basically, Mr. Nixon said, his administration will pursue its current policies; an emphasis on increasing supplies of products, opposition to the tax cut that Senate Democrats are pressing, holding the federal budget to a level of $306 billion for the fiscal year beginning July 1 and support of the Federal Reserve Board's "tight money" actions, Harsh Medecine "The requirements for full eco-

We cannot spend our way to prosperity. Neither can we schieve prosperity or price stability by putting America back into a straitjacket of controls." But the President saw a silver lining on some of the economic storm clouds

"Despite a dip in the first three mouths of this year resulting from the energy crisis, personal incomes today - after inflation and after taxes-are still 14 percent higher than they were five years ago," he said.

Real income for the first quarter of this year, however, was lower than It was in the final quarter of 1973. "The number of Americans working today is at a record While the rate of those unemployed has risen only slight-Mr. Nixoo said, "And the quality of life in America—the ability to feed, clothe and house our people-has continued at an unparalleled level."

The unemployment rate in April was 5 percent. Our efforts to dampen inflatiou are also beginning to pay off," he said, "The chief causes of inflation last year, and in the first few months of this year. were the increases in food and cnergy prices. As the shortages nf food have eased in the past several months, the wholesale costs of basic food items have declined sharply. Prices of wheat, corn, soybeans, beef, hogs and

Housing Segregation Eases In U.S. South, Survey Finds

By William Chapman WASHINGTON, May 26 (WP),

Housing segregation in many cities loosened during the 1960s, a major study of racial residential patterns indicates. In most cases the changes were slight, but a prominent demog-rapher said the study shows that a long-term trend toward more and more rigid segregation was reversed during the decade.

In virtually every Southern city examined, the study showed that in 1970 there were more blocks containing homes with both whites and nonwhites than there The changes were most dramatic in Southern cities that have large groups of families of Letin American origin. It sug-gests that these groups are having an easier time integrating than are American blacks. The study is a computer analysis of 1970 census data con-ducted by researchers at the University of Wisconsin's Institute for Research on Poverty. Its results can be compared with identical analyses conducted of the 1940, 1950 and 1960 censuses. Pattern of Change

Such comparisons, according to Karl Tacuber, director of the research, show the following pattern of changes over the last de-Racial segregation increased significantly in virtually every American city analyzed during the 1940s and in the South during the 1950s. · The trend began to change in the 1950s in the Northern cities - segregation became less • In the 1960s, according to the new analysis, the trend toward segregation was also reversed in Southern cities more white and nonwhite families were apt to live in the same blocks. The institute's analysis does not include housing patterns in the suburbs. It is limited only to studies have shown that metropolitan segregation at least of Negroes and whites on the whole changed little in the 1960s. The proportion of the suburban population that was black in 1970 was about 5 percent, roughly the same as it was in 1960.

The new study contains no ex-planation for the change in Southern cities. Mr. Taeuber speculated that it probably is due to two factors the economie advances of nonwhite families and open-housing laws which give noowhites a legal tool for prying open white neighborhoods. Mr. Tacuber also observed that the amount of desegregation in Southern housing patterns was small. "What is important is that the trend I toward increased segregation] has been broken," he last 10 years have occurred in those cities where the nonwhite population includes not only blacks but persons of Latin American origin, primarily Cubans and Mexican-Americans. For example, sharp declines in-segregation were reported for San Antonio, Texas, and San Diego, Calif., cities with large Mexican - American populations. and Miami, which has a large new Cuban population. . The changes in the extent of segregation in those cities were much more dramatic than those in Southern cities where the nonulation is composed almost entirely of blacks and whites.

Mr. Tacuber observed that such comparisons might indicate that persons of foreign extraction have less trouble being integrated with whites than do American Blacks. He said comparisons with previous census analyses show that foreign émigre populations such as the Chinese have become more widely dispersed than the black blocks within a central city. Other populations in many cities.

Reversal of Calley Conviction Seen Likely

By Wayne King

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 26 (NYT).—Although still a military prisoner and dishonorably discharged from the Army, former 1st Lt. William Calley appears to be living well while he awaits civilian court action that some authorities including the judge in the case himself say has a good chance of reversing altogether his conviction on charges of mass murder of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai

Calley, who has been free from his house arrest on personal bond since Feb. 27, now comes and goes as he pleases—with the exception of having to elude newsmen driving about the city of Columbus in a white Mercedes Benz sports car loaned to him by 2 sympathizer, taking flying lessons at $17 an hour and preparing for courses he has signed up for at a local college.
He is not employed, although his attorney says he has received a number of job offers he is mulling over. The exact amount contained in the defense fund raised through contributions is not known, but is said to be substantial-into six figures. Calley's appeals and reviews within the military system are now complete, and he has two im-portant chellenges pending in federal court.

The first, to be argued early next month, demands disclosure hy the Army of all material relevant to Calley's conviction-including the so-called "Peers Report." the secret Army investigation of the My Lai incident said to contain information on whether Army higher-ups tried to conceal the massacre, Also sought are any eyewitness accounts of the incident and any reports made to the government by the so-called plumbers' unit involved in the Watergate affair. The White House unit is alleged to have covertly inquired into the My Lai-

That move is preliminary to the major action by the Calley de-fense attorneys to overturn the military conviction on constitutional grounds. Federal Judge Robert Elliott of the Georgia Middle District Court, who released Calley on $1,000 personal bond, has agreed to hear the arguments June 24. Judge Elliott, in a highly unusual public statement, has already said in court, in response to prodding hy prosecution attorneys, that he felt Calley would be successful in

U.S. Expended $5.9 Million on LBJ Property WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP),

The federal government spent approximately $5.9 million on property owned by the late President Lyndon Johnson while be was in office, the House Government Operations Committee has reported. The committee, which disclosed earlier that $17.1 million has been spent on President Nixon's properties, said most of the funds for the Johnson properties were spent on security facilities.

Included in the $5.9 million was an estimated $3,573,000 spent by the Department of Defense and the White House Communications Agency for communications support in connection with the LBJ Ranch in Texas, where the President spent most of his

The $5.9 million also includes $770,000 for office space for Mr. Johnson in the Federal Office Building in Austin, Texas. In addition, $15,000 was spent for installation and repair of Secret Service facilities at another Johnson Ranch and $34,000 for work at a hangar on the LBJ Ranch "to accommodate news conferences, television broadcasts and the entertainment of foreign dignitaries."

The assessment is based in part on the legal similarities between the Calley case and that of Army Capt. Howard Levy, who was convicted for disobeying an order and other offenses in refusing to train Army medics for Vietnam duty. At least one of the same articles of the Uniform Code of Military Justice used to convict Calley—that dealing with conduct unbecoming an officer-was ruled unconstitutional in the Levy case. Calley's attorneys, most notably Houston Gordon of Covington, Tenn, himself a former Army officer, who was forhidden the op-portunity to defend Calley in the court-martial proceedings, also argue that numerous procedural errors were committed in convicting the lieutenant.

Regardless of the outcome, it is his suit to overburn the convic-tion. quite possible that Calley will be free oo parole within a matter of months This arises from the action of Army Secretary Howard Calloway in cutting Calley's 20-year sentence-which had already been reduced previously from life imprisonment—to 10 years. The rather preferential treatment for a convicted mass murderer prompted the Atlanta Constitution to comment sercastically: "At the present rate of progress, Lt. William C. Calley ought to be headed for a Congressional Medal of Honor . . "

Most Georgians, particularly in Columbus, shere that view-but without the sarcasm. Several callers to a radio "talk show" on a Columbus station recently suggested the former licutement be given a medal, or accorded some other form of support.

SLA, Black Army Said to Join In a Message to Miss Hearst where and how she might spend

LOS ANGELES, May 26 (AP). The search for Patricia Hearst and William and Emily Harris continued today as authorities studied a tape recording with a voice alleged to be that of a woman field marshal in the Symbionese Liberation Army.

The tape recording was received late yesterday by radio station KPFA of Berkeley. It carries the voices of a woman claiming to be a general field marshal of the SLA and a man who said he was the minister of cultural affairs for the Black Liberation Army. An FBI spokesman said today that his office has no evidence of other radical groups aiding group of about 20 to 25 members. But he said. "Any fugitive tries to connect up with people who are friendly to him." The woman who identified her-self as "General Field Marshal Cabrella of the federated forces of the Symbionese Liberation Army," said that her message was intend-

Coalition Announced

The woman announced formation of a coalition, the United People's Liberation Army. She sald that she was a war conncil member of the group and was authorized to speak on its behalf. "This united front of urban guer-rilla organizations was forged out of an emergency meeting after the events in Los Angeles last week," she said. She apparently referred to the shootout May 17 between police and SLA members which left six SLA members dead, including the who called himself General Field Marshal Cinque. The FBI agent in charge of the Hearst case, Charles Bates, said that he bad never beard of the United People's Liberation Army. "From what I-know about the tape, it doesn't appear to come from Patricia Hearst or the Harrises. The other person on the tape identified himself as Thunga Abdul Asad, the minister of cultural affairs on the Black Liberation Army. . . New Rule He said that because of the Los Angeles shootout, the group has decided that no more than three members would occupy one location at any time. "Six soldiers are too many comrades to lose in one The Los Angeles Times said in today's editions that, through her job as a clerk-typist at the University of California at Berkeley, Mrs. Harris had access to data showing when Miss Hearst might be attending classes and her free time. Officers found a notebook that apparently had belonged to Mrs. Harris and contained notes about Miss Hearst and the words "guns and action."

Miss Hearst, 30, was a student at the University of California at Berkeley when she was dragged from her spartment Feb. 4. The SLA claimed credit for the kidnapping. Miss Hearst subsequently said she had joined her captors and is sought by authorities on kidnap, assault and other

U.S. Aide Gives Top Priority to Europe, Japan

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP). -Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth Rush said today there can be no higher priority for the United States than encouraging Japan and Western Europe "to join us in giving fresh creativity to our alliances."

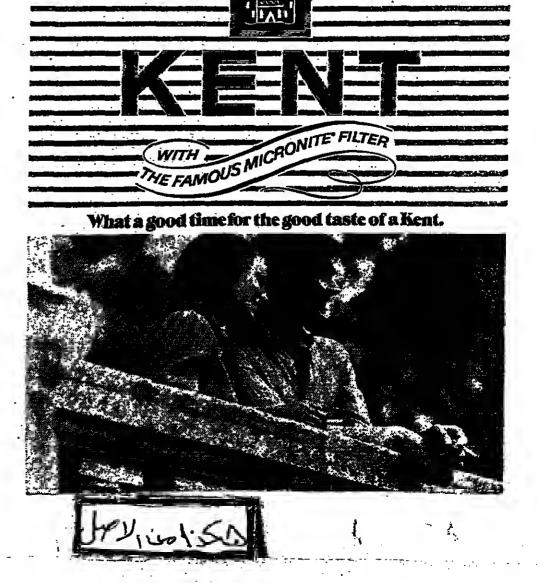

The State Department's second highest official, who has been acting secretary in the absence of Henry Kissinger and who has been named President Nixon's chief economic coordinator, declared that the U.S. partnership with Europe and Japan has deterred major threats to mutual security for more than two decades. "Now we are in the process of adjusting our relationships to new international conditions, many of them the result of our mutual successes," he said in a commencement address at Tusculum College in Greenville, Tenn. Mr. Rush said that alliances which once drew their sole motivating force from fear of accression must now define new and positive purposes. He referred to negotiations for mutual and balanced reduction of military forces between NATO and the Warsaw Pact powers and the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Inflation and Watergate

Watergata is the great topic of discussion in the United States today, but inflation is the great worry. Although the rate may not be as high in America as elsewhere, it is higher than has been known for many years, and the circumstances surrounding it are baffling. It is not the result of war, or preparation for war (although it may be in part the dregs of war), and it comes in the midst of the most profound international economic uncertainty.

Given the extent of American economic strength-which is very great-it would seem that all the United States really has to fear, as Franklin D. Roosevelt so memorably said in a more desperate situation more than 40 years ago, is fear itself. But where is the voice now that can say that, and carry con-

"The storms are abating." President Nixon told the country on Saturday. And he might well be right, although economists are at odds both about the nature of the storms and the degree of their abatement. But words from the White House, these days, do not win instant respact, and the actions the President proposes-"budgatary restraint, no tax cut, tight money"-however wise under the circumstances, do not appeal to the public imagination. By comparison with the drastic innovations of the New Deal they do not seem as "barsh medicine" as Mr. Nixon termed them, but to accept them as suificient for the day requires a confidence in the administration which has been dissipated by Watergate.

It would be wrong to place all the uncertainty on the current crop of scandals and the prospect of impeachment. In that satire on the Hoover era, "Of Thee I Sing," President Wintergreen warns his vice-president. Throttlebottom, against making speeches because they send the stock market down. And when Throttlebottom asks how to make the stock market go up. Wintergreen brought the curtain and the house down with a heartfelt: "I wish I knew!"

But Watergate bas interfered, sadly, with the ability of the country and its government to concentrate on discussions of the nature of the economic condition, and the measures that might be employed to improve it. Even the appointment of Kenneth Rush as counselor to the President on economic matters awakened questioning whether, as one Democratic senator put it, this was a 'serious attempt" to cope with the problem or "just another public relations gesture." This might be dismissed as mere partisanship, but it does reflect the crisis of confidence that exists.

Mr. Nixon is trying to ride out one storm -the storm over Watergate. This is clearly not abating. The country must ride out Watergate and "slumpflation." Neither is of an intensity that threatens the basic American political or economic structure. But the combination, in a world that will not permit the United States to go off in a corner and walt out the stresses, is trouble-

The Duke of Jazz

Edward Kennedy Ellington did not like the word "jazz" as applied to the Idiom which he transmuted from the sound of little smoke-filled honky-tonks on the disreputable verge of a society to moving music of great concert halls and cathedrals at its most respectable center. But jazz it was, and jazz it probably will remain, with its sharp echoes of the sadness and the joyand, thanks in no small part to the Duke -the aspirations of a race that flourished in Africa, was shaped and often brutally malformed in America, and has now found many voicas to tell of those deep-biting experiences. Duke Ellington was not alone in finding the breadth of artistic emotion that jazz contained, bot in the authenticity and subtlety with which he wrought it, in the impact of his own vivid personality upon it, he did more than any other individual to give jazz its greatness. The Duke is gone. but his memory and his legacy are imperish-

India's Nuclear Threat

The nations which have supplied India ing special responsibilities for peace. The with the nuclear reactors, fissionable material and technology that have enabled New Delhi to explode an atomic device have an obligation before mankind now to act together to contain this new threat of nuclear proliferation. It is essential not to be diverted by political or diplomatic considerations, or by protestations from India that its explosions are intended for peaceful uses and are not in violation of the 1970 Nonproliferation Treaty, which New Delhi has never

Canada is rightly showing the way by suspending its aid to India's atomic energy program. Other donors, such as the United States, the Sovlet Union and France, have a moral, if not a legal, obligation to do the same and to respond favorably to Ottawa's call for joint consideration of "the broad international implications" of India's action.

The argument that the five present nuclear powers, having known sin, may not point their finger at India is like saying that a sixth wrong can make a right. The fact that nuclear weapons bave spread as far as they have-and are only beginning to be subjected to useful measures of arms control -makes it even more vital to prevent them from proliferating further, beyond the possibility of control.

Moreover, the five present nuclear-weapons countries are the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council, accepted by the world community as possess-fire-break between them and other countries, reinforced by the Nonproliferation Treaty, can only be breached at the world's peril. If nuclear weapons spread furthercoming into the hands of demagogle dictators and even organizations of terrorisis and criminals-dangerous instabilities will replace the relatively stable nuclear balance that now exists, based on concepts of mutual

Canada has taken the lead in calling for action because of the supposition that the plutonium used in the Indian explosion came from a Canadian reactor. And Canada has made it clear repeatedly-as has the Nonproliferation Treaty-that there is no such thing as a "peacaful" nuclear explosion distinguisbable from a military hlast.

The Nonproliferation Treaty, for this very reason, provides for the supply of peaceful explosive services by the nuclear countries to other nations at cost if and when such explosions become safe and economically advantageous. But that possibility, once thought close at hand, has receded further and further into the future with each experimental test. Many experts believe the pursult of this will-o-the-wisp, which threatens more damage than gain, should now be abandoned. It is hardly likely that India can develop peaceful uses for nuclear explosives more quickly than the major

Politics Before Children

Citing Washington's "deep disappointment" in the alleged failure of Vietnamese Communists to show a genuine commitment to peace, the U.S. government has insisted that the United Nations Children's Fund not use American money to help finance new programs for child ain in North Vietnam and Communist-held areas of the South. It is the American people who should be disappointed that their government could stoop to put politics ahead of the welfare of children anywhere.

UNICEF has a long and honorable record of scrupulously nonpolitical assistance to phildren in more than 100 countries, including compassionate aid to both sides during the Nigerian civil war. It has supported child ald programs in South Vietnam since 1956 and has earmarked $11.2 million for the South in the disputed new program that encompasses ail of Indochina.

The U.S. government, on the contrary, has a shameful history of neglect for child welfare in Vietnam, even in the South. It was only after the most intensive prodding from Congress and private citizens that the administration egreed recently to step up its contribution to the South's war-destitute children-including thousands of filegitimate ollspring of U.S. servicemen-to a meager $72 million.

Fortunately. UNICEF has adequate resources and resolve to go ahead with its planto bein primary schools in North Vietnam and child health services in Communist-held areas of the South without official American support. Individual Americans can help by contributing directly to UNICEF's human-Itarian effort. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Nothing Ado About Much

By C. L. Sulzberger

GENEVA—Something seems to have gone wrong with the 35nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. This has been meeting intermittently for 18 months with the idez of more or less formalizing détente between Communist and non-Communist blocs facing each other on the continent.

The Russians, who had actually urged the meeting for years before it finally began, have suddenly reversed their field. Meanwhile, several Western particlpants appear to be souring.

CSCE, as it is known in today's diplomatic jargon, is part of the package in which West and East are trying to foster detente by acknowledging the European status quo left over from World War II and Communism's conquests while at the the East and reducing defensa

Moscow is most interested in de jure ratification of frontiers dividing its aphere from the West. The Western countries are trying to insure certain minimal guarantees of freedom ni thought and movement in the Soviet area.

Other Bargaining

CSCE is linked to other bargalning: mutual and balanced force reductions (MBFR), SALT and bilateral trade, above all between the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.P., ell are related to the objective of detente and to compromising the Beeds and desires of each bloc, subject to the agreement of neutrals in between. At CSCE, which includes the United States end Canada, every European government except Albama's is represented. Many are

The argument that had been slowly shaping up was between Russia, wishing a very precise commitment egainst any change of frontiers, and the West, seek ing Soviet guerantees to extend freedom within its sphere.

The West was rejuctant to concede "inviolability" of frontiers, only to egree they could not be eltered by violent means. It didn't wish to frustrate an eventual peaceful unification of Germany, for example. Russia was balky about modifying its political system to suit Western concepts of freedom.

Yet progress shalled forward. Leonid Brezhnev was personally committed to détente, despite the opposition of some Kremlin hardliners, and the Soviet boss had confirmed his commitment to Western leaders like Georges Pompidou, Will; Brandt and Richard Nixon. He wanted CSCE to wind up its Geneva phase successfully this spring to enable him to push for a summit in Helsinki before August, where all 35 chiefs of government would put their seal on

Few Achievements

But Brezhnev hasn't achieved what he hoped. Soviet trade program is in trouble with Congress. MBFR is in stalemate: SALT is moving very slowly. CSCE hasn't vet stamped its OK on Soviet map-making after World War II and it embarrasses Moscow to hear all the talk here on freedom of movement and opinion when it is having trouble with dissidents at

Yet West European participants also are fed up with Soviet stonewalling on "basket three" as the section on human rights is called because of its agenda number. Some Westerners are starting to murmur the obvious. What can be done if Russia gives guarantees of liberty—and then starts to renege on them after winning its own point on European fron-

The big trade-off had been shaping up: More Western yield on the issue that was paramount in Soviet eyes, "inviolability" of borders; and more Soviet yield on the paramount issue for the West, widening chinks in what 15 once called the iron curtain.

More Cautious

However, since the negotiators returned here late last month from a long Easter recess, the Soviet ettitude has become noticeably cautious. The Rus-

U.S. Leaders' Silence

The Other 'Cover-U

By James Reston

WASHINGTON-One of the ness and spirit of de marked features of the present national crisis is the comparative silence of many leaders of the institutions, communities and states of the republic. They are obviously not without opinions on the morai squalor of the Nixon administration, for they state them eloquently and even vehemently in private. But most of them say nothing in public. There are, of course, hotable exceptions among leaders of the church, the bar, the universities and the press. The President's own resident priest in the White House, Father McLaughlin, at least spoke up for his boss, but when the President's other favorite preschers, including the Rev. Billy Graham, were asked for their opinions about his language and conduct, they passed by on the other side.

This is typical of a great many other men and women whose character and position have great influence in their communities. Seldom a day goes by that a letter from some such person does not arrive in this office, either scalding the President or scalding the press, usually with the underscored notation: "This is not for publication."

National Crisis

What they seem to be saying is that we are certainly in a national crisis, but keep me out of it. Leave it to the lawyers, the Congress, the courts and the press. This is the larger coverup in the controversy: The coverup of the true feelings of many men and women who know they bave influence but don't want to commit themselves in public on the moral issues.

The legal issues and personal judgment on the guilt or innocence of the President are of course different matters. These questimes are before the courts and the Congress. Private citizens do not have all the evidence. and Mr. Nixon is apparently determined to see that all the evidence is not mada available to the public, or even to the courts and Congress. Accordingly, silence by outsiders at this point on the legal questions is understandable.

But the theory of democracy is that we are all insiders on tha conduct of the men we elect, on whether they tell the truth, whether they make essential evidence available or conceal it, and whether they act in accordance with their trust or evade it.

"Who shall be the judge whether the prince or legislative act con-trary to their trust?" John Locks asked. Meanwhile, on the High Seas

By William F. Buckley Jr.

London, who is the head of the Institute for the Study of Conflict has written an analysis for the Times of London of the strategic meaning of the imminent reopening of the Suez Canal. In laymen's terms, it means that the distance between the Black Sea and the Indian Ocean will be reduced by 2,000 miles. So what?

"When the Snez Canal route is fully operative," the sober-minded, softspoken Mr. Crozier explains, "the major oil-producing countries will be effectively ringed by the Soviet Nevy. In the longer term," he adds, "the supply of Middle East oil to Western Burope may become increasingly dependent on the dubious goodwill of Adm. [Sergei] Gorshkov and his Kremlin colleagues."

Permit me to introduce Adm. Gorshkov. He is the gentleman who, as commander in chief of the Soviet Navy, said on July 28, 1967: "The Soviet Navy has been converted, in the full sense of the word, into an offensive type of long-range armed force. which could exert a decisive influence on the course of an armed struggle in theaters of military operations of vast extent... and which is also able to support state interests at sea in peace-

Situation Deteriorates

Meanwhile, the situation on the Western front deteriorates: We all know that the British retreated from east of Suez. And, most recently, India has been in the news, objecting to a proposed U.S. naval build-up of modest naval bunkering facilities... Diego Garcia Island, which is 1,000 miles away from the tip of India, against which the United States has no obviously aggressive designs, having, when last heard from on the general point, torn up an Indian IOU of a halfdocen million dollars, indeed & gesture of noblesse oblige.

What is significant, of course, is that India's instinctive gesture of hyper-modesty, reaching to protect all its sensitive parts from any taint of familiarity by Uncle Sam, was not evidenced at all in

TEW YORK—Brian Crozier of its blowsy receptiveness to Soviet advances. The net figures are these, Because of the availability to the Soviet Union of Indian and Persian Gulf facilities, "the number of Soviet ship days"—as Mr. Crozier exactly puts it, applying the warship-a-day formula to the Indian Ocean-has increased from 2,000 in 1968 to more than 8,000 at present. It exceeds the number of U.S. ship days by more than three to one." Inasmuch as the strain of such emberant military mission on an economy as straitened as Russta's is inexplicable except on evangelistic grounds, it must be assumed that the Soviet Union has an objective. That objective was only dimly perceived up until quite recently, when the Arabs demonstrated that the control of the vital spigot in the Persian Gulf meant a great deal.

Obvious Significance Up until last fall, everything was mere strategic projection. One could imagine Adm. Gorshkoy patiently explaining to the Kremin the strategic benefits of dominating the seas around the Persian Gulf. It was most probably the demonstration of last fall that brought around the unbelievers. Greece Agrees To-Meet Turkey On Oil Dispute

ANKARA May 25 (Reuters).— Grecce has agreed to negotiate with Turkey on their dispute over oil exploration in the Aegean Sea, Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit announced yesterday.

In February Greece protested when Turkey granted oil exploration rights in the Aegean to the Turkish state-owned oil company. Turkey said the rights, although outside its six-mile territorial limit, were on the Anatolian continental shelf.

In an answer to the Greek protest, Turkey proposed solving the dispute by negotiation.

Greece has been insisting on ights to the shelf around each of the Greek islands, some of which are only a mile from the Turkish mainland. But Turkish Poreign Minister Turhan Gunes said in a recent statement that Turkey would not let the Aegean become a "Greek lake."

Mr. Ecevit said Greece had agreed to fix the borders of the two countries' continental shelves through negotiations and in a

Bombs Damage Communist HQs In Argentine City

BUENOS AIRES May 26 IAPI. - Two Communist party head-quarters were bombed, the Cordoba provincial governor's office was attacked and a policeman was wounded in a clash with a Marxist guerrilla group Friday as a wave of violence continued in Argentina.

The attacks on the Communist offices here caused considerable damage but there were no injuries. Police said they could not identify the attackers. In Cordoba, 450 miles northwest of here, a group of unidentifled men fired rifles at the sional Peronist governor's offices. In the town of Munro, about 10 miles north of here, a band of guerrillas attacked and subdued the guards of a small steel mill. The guerrillas escaped after exchanging gunfire with police for 15 minutes. A policeman was seriously wounded.

Berlin—Its Spirit Cannot Be Walled In

By Hubert J. Erb

DERLIN (AP), — "Berlin." the Berliners say with stubborn price, "is still Berlin."

The boast defies the grim reality of the Berlin wall aod the Western sector's precarious political and economic situation 125 miles inside Communist East Germaoy.

Tweoty-five years after Germany's division into two states, West Berlin remains a rump city, beautiful in the spring sunlight and glittering at night, but still occupied by foreign armies, still without sovereignty and with only disrupted political ties to Bonn.

the capital of West Germany. Across the wall, Berlin's Eastern sector has won back some of what the city as a whole lost after defeat in war. East Ber-lin is the capital of the Com-munist half of what is left of Hitler's Greater German Reich.

East Germany is recognized by more than 100 states. France and Britain have ambassadors in residence. The United States is expected to recognize East Germany later this year.

Freedom Issue

The 22 million West Berliners feel politically unperprivileged although vastly better off than their Eastern cousins in terms of liberty and material well-being. The 1.1 million East Berliners are penned behind their government's wall while the West Berliners may pass through it, although not freely.

For a time, West Berlin beocfited from its cold war status as a democratic island in a menacing Communist sea. But in recent years, Berlin has lost macy of its biggest company headquarters as the firms, and their younger ambitious executives found West Germany a better place for Common Market

Emptiness

The emptiness is most apparent in East Berlin. But it is East Berlin that holds most of what is historic in the city. It was here that the kalsers ruled and Prussiao glory was centered, where Frederick the Great built a state opera that was the world's greatest two centuries ago

A high-school studeot from California remarked after visiting East Berlin for the first time,

European Security Summit -Time Quickly Running Out

GENEVA (NYT).—The possibility of bolding an East-West summit meeting this summer to courlede the European Security Conference is dimming rapidly, conference sources say.

Time is running out fast in the absence of any major progress in the six weeks since the 35-nation conference resumed negotiations here, after an Easter recess, according to some Western and hoo-

Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party leader, is known to have hoped that the bargaining would be completed in time for the signing in a July summit session in Helsinki of a declaration marking a new era in East-West relations.

However, because the conference has yet to make a preakthrough oo such key human-rights issues as freer flows of information and persons across frontiers, the possibility of holding the fund, cere-montal phase in July is in serious doubt.

Demand Is Met

The West is particularly disappointed because it had expected Soviet coocessions in exchange for having met, just before the Easter break, a major Soviet demand that the frootiers that emerged from the post-World War II division of Europe be recognized as

Nevertheless, the U.S. delegation, which is headed by Ambassador Albert Sherer jr., does not rule out the possibility of reaching an accord by the eod of June.

Soviet inaction on the human-rights questions could be only a tactical maneuver that may be replaced by a more flexible attitude before it becomes impossible to bold the final phase in July, sources close to the delegation say. If this phase cannot be held in July. it would have to be put back until after the summer, according to conference officials.

Decisive Moves

The Soviet Union, according to some Western diplomats, may be waiting for the dust to settle from the government changes in France and West Germany and President Nition's domestic difficulties before it makes decisive moves.

Nevertheless, Moscow is less concerned how than in the past about the timing of the conference's final phase, according to Communist sources. The Soviet emphasis is no longer on the need for a rapid completion of the negotiations but on the necessity of recognizing that the talks must be pursued to a satisfactor; conin a different world, a different country from back home."

Culturally, the city has made its greatest comeback.

Herbers von Karajan directs the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, which draws the West Berliners in multitudes. They admire his genius and pay respect to an orchestra which kept on playing throughout the war even after the roof of its old concert hall had been bombed away.

Walter Feisenstein, like Mr. Earajan an Austrian, has made East Berlin's Comic Opera into a great musical theater. Also in East Berlin is the world-famous Theater Ensemble of Bertholt Brecht. West Berlin has the tra-ditional Schiller Theater and the German Opera House.

Dozens of small Portuguese concerns, notably in textiles and food processing, produce almost exclusively for the African market. These operations, for the most part inefficient and antiquated, have been traditionally dependent on what has been a protected trading area. The loss of the overseas markets would probably mean the closing of many companies or their absorption into larger ones, with consequent unemployment.

But the effect of a loss of African markets on overall Portuguese trade would be much weaker oow than it would have been a few years ago. Exports to the overseas areas fell from 29.8 percent of total exports in to 14.8 percent last year. There has been a corresponding rise in exports to the rest of Europe. It is probable, too, that, indulging in nostaloid for these takes-a-keek press conferences of Franklin Romanski when 50 or 60 Teporters ynthered around the Fresident's deak is a tutile exercise—Columnist Idarquis Childs, in a speech at Johns Hopkins University.

Roosevelt and the Press: Futility of Nostalgia

WASHINGTON (WP).-Since there have been so many allusions of late to the Propagatic press conferences, one would think they were marvels of openness. A closer look is in order: It would be worse than futile to lay to return to them. My mind goes back to those exhibarating days, circa 1936. when I was a national affairs writer for Time in New York. Occasionally, I found myself in Washington and, if the day was right, the Roosevelt press contended was a "genal treat laid on by the hired stringer. This stringer had a special importance to Time. He was regularly employed by a daily newspaper and was a member of the White House Correspondents Association. It those days only members of that organization were automatically eligible to attend presidential press conferences. Magazine writers and reporters and radio commentators and reporters were barred there just as they were from the Senate and House press galleries. But a member like our structer would bring along a guest journalist occasionally. This rule was obviously intended as a device for character-building with publishers and editors from back home, and it wasn't stretched too much by our amiable stringer-employer relationship.

Wild Differences

The Roosevelt press conference itself was as widtly outferent from anything that would be tolerated by the media or public today as were these closed arrangements.

As he was crippled, the President was put in place called his desk before the press was admined. Time it was the confidmen of the press and not the President who made the entrance when the stage was set. It was not the theatrical one we are accustomed to today, though it was not entirely untheatrical. As the doors were opened, there, at stage center, sat the President in shirtsleeves and with that inevitable digarette holder jutting aggressively upward from his smiling lips. As they strede in by twos and threes to belly up in a crescent before the broad cinttered desk, the repeated litany, "Good morning, Mr. President," was acknowledged from behind the desk with a series of gracious nods and deepening smiles.

Then, while the crescent was still forming, the cigarette holder was lifted slowly from the lips with a special flare and the smoloering elgarette was pointed at a columnist. That very morning his column had contained something the Presicent didn't like at all. With the smile still playing around his ilps, the President was telling him and his colleagues in no uncertain terms how lowly he regarded a journalistic talent that could be so wrong. His condescending whimsy and the demeaning jibes that sprinkled his running banter left no doubts before the press conference began about who was boss and was going to run the show.

No Quotes

As the press conference began, one was soon aware of the most astounding fact of all: It was the rule, apparently cheerfully accepted by the accommodating press, that the President could not be quoted directly unless he granted specific permission. Thus, much of importance that he had to say in answer to questions was completely off the record or could be attributed only to a nameless White House source. On occasion he would grant a request for direct quotation of an enswer just given (after a wink or nod from press secretary Steve Early usually, and theo restate his answer, changing it ever so subtly while pencils raced across paper. About three days after a press conference the White House issued an edited transcript which was given scant attention by the press.

Sometimes the President would simply refuse to answer a question and occasionally he would ridicule a questioner or rear his head back and just loogh derisively. The press was inclined to greet the President's most outrageous jibes with hervous hughter-as when the President "ordered" John O'Donnell, the dignified political columnist of the New York Daily News, to put on a dimee cap and stand in the corner after he had asked a particularly annoying question. They were all members of the chip in good standing and, oh, so anxious to stay that way.

President Roosevelt was a master, if folly, manipulator of the press, but if he had something he wanted to get to the public in his own way, he commandeered the radio networks for a fireside chat. That hasn't changed very much, but a Roosevelt type press conference would be unacceptable to today's public and media as well. It wouldn't play in Peoria.

Furthermore, we have left the sterile polemics of the cold war hebind. The Russians are now talking in terms of detente and cooperation. We have constructive discussions proceeding—the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, the falks on Mutual and Balanc-ed Force Reductions, the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe-instead of exchanges of insults. These discussions will be a test of the extent to which the Russians are prepared to recognize the substance as well as the principle of détente.

In this vastly changed situation it is not surprising that the continuing validity of the alliance is questioned by many people. So why does the British government feel that the alliance is still vital as an instrument of defense, and an important tool of detente?

The alliance was formed in response to a threat. That threat may seem to have receded in the new atmosphere of detente. But there is no sign that the Russians, who must want to improve the living standards of their people just as much as we in the West do, are dismantling the powerful forces they main-

Soviet military power has increased and is increasing. They have built up a strategic nuclear force to the point where they have parity with the United States. Though, unlike Europe, world's sea lanes for vital supplies, they have built the second largest battle fleet in the world. Their capacity to enforce their riews by the use or threat of the use of force is formidable

In this situation the ultimate guarantee of Europe's security is America's strategic power. And America knows that if Europe were to fall under Russian mination it would mean a basic shift in the whole world security situation. America's own security would be threatened. As Henry Kissinger said in March this year, "Of course the defense of Europe is also the defense of the United States and we do not have troops in Europe in order to do a favor to the Europeans."

Bill-Paying

The Europeans already do a great deal-in their own defense and have made great efforts to improve their contribution. In the 10 years from 1963 to 1973 European members of the alliance have increased their proportion of NATO countries' defense expenditure from one-quarter to one-third; this is a real shift in relative efforts. Eurogroup of Defense Ministers, formed after an initiative from Denis Healer, then British secretary of state for defense, has played a considerable past in these efforts. In the frie rears since Eurogroup was formed line total defense budget of its members has almost doubled-from $15.8 billion to $30.2 billion- - his that for North America has in fact declined slightly, from $82.5 billion to $80.8 billion

In 1970 the Eurogroup isunched the European Defense Improvement Program a fine-year $1-hillion program of additional defense improvements, now nearly complete. And the momentum of Eurogroup force improvements has been maintained: for insiance, en 1973 and 1974 Eurogroup countries will nave introduced into service over 300 main battle tanks, over 2,500 other armored vehicles, over 300 modern combat sircrait and 80 or more warships,

The European alies recognize that they must continue to pull their weight in the ailiance. But I hope that American public opinion similarly recognizes the considerable, and increasing, evtent to which they are alreany doing so. As the U.S. secretary of defense said un his latest annual report: "In tairness, we should acknowledge at the outset that NATO defense has been far from a single-handed effort by the United States. Limits of Action .

The answer is, not necessarily anything. Domestic politics in both countries limit what their leaders can do.

The popular mood in France probably would not tolerate un-popular deflationary measures. In West Germany, the mood at the moment is "We're taking care of our problems, why should we have to solve anybody else's." And the rhetorical Europeanist Mr. Brandt has been replaced by the more pragmatic purse string

The Schmidt government's statement welcoming Mr. Giscard d'Estaing's campaign comments on the French-German relationship and on the necessity of keeping to the Common Market's goals for political and monetary union in Europe by 1980 were expressions of hope rather than a response to concrete proposals. according to analysts here.

It was the refusal of Mr. Pom-idou's administration to agree to this word-"partnership"-in a proposed joint European-Amer ican declaration of principles that led to last winter's Atlantic political crisis.

It short, the bare of the option to convert the bonds into the common stock did not work because the cutlook for work because the outlook for share prices in general remains very uncertain.

The poor reception of the Canon loan has caused Asahi Chemical and Nippon Fudosan Bank to delay their plans to come

Another lure that of record high interest rates is having only modest success. STEI, the Italian telephone company, is offering investors floating-rate notes pegged at three-quarters of a percentage point over the London interbank offered (LIBO) rate for six-month Eurodollar deposits. The presumed appeal was that investors with relatively small sums—as little as $1,000—could get a return on their money that normally could only be had by investing upward of $10,000 in the short-term Eurodollar deposit market.

Piaced With Banks

Although the 10-year notes are fully underwritten, most of this paper will be placed among banks rather than small individual in-vestors. With banks rapidly reaching their self-imposed limits on loans to Italy, it had been hoped that the government would open up a new source of funds by fashioning an instrument designed to attract the general bublic.

According to the managers of the issue, private clients appear to account for about a third of

However, the market will apparently have another test as a new floating-rate loan for an Italian borrower carrying a government guarantee is expected to be launched shortly.

NEW YORK, May 26 (NYT). -Karlier this month it appeared thet a turn for the better had occurred in some important sertors of the nation's economy, with industrial production stariing upward after a four-month slide and brighter statistics evolving in retail business, auto sales, housing and new-order bookings for many lines of activity.

Now there is some reason for optimism that the country's horrendous experience with a record high level of inflation in double digits may have passed its crest. If those trenos of production, sales and inflation can be sustained, and if the sharp escalation of interest rates can be halted fairly soon, the complex-ion of the American economy would soon be assuming a much brighter hue. It would not leave the public and the business world without an ample quota of proplems, but it would mean that some of the more serious ones, which so bedeviled the economic scene earlier this year, would be muti-gated considerably.

Prospects are good for further short-term abatement of the explosive rise in food prices, but the outlook for the cost of energy and industrial prices in general is somewhat more murky, as is the longer-range prospect for farm and food prices.

Economists watching commodity prices have been heartened by the sharp declines that have occurred in key farm produce during the last two months. From its record high of 86.70 a bushel in February, wheat dropped rather suddenly to $3.42 two weeks ago; corn has come down from its 1974 top of $3,35

tion being oil, plus the expectition of another inge harvest iris fail from spring planeous of wheat still corn are proposede for the recent downturn in form prices. The victor wheat crop is empedadi to be for officer bushels,

$5.40. Live work has york sold conde oil since the end of the nations to determine world world political and economic events will probably be a major determinant of the decisions made by the Arab and other oil countries.

At home there is a cautious optimism, too, that American industry will resist an excessive rash of fresh increases in a wide array of goods. As expected there was a bulge in industrial prices following the lifting of many economic controls at the end of April. But, so far at least, the parade has been more moderate than many had feared-

On another front - interest rates-the zenith may not have been reached yet. But may be close at hand—perhaps within a few weeks after a possible further and slight upward ratcheting of short-term rates. Many banking observers are beginning to feel that the current 11 3/4 percent level or 12 percent may represent the high-water mark for now in the prime lending rate at the nation's banks.

In addition to their worries about high interest rates, the inflated prices for the materials they buy and other cost increases, businessmen are concerned about the continued desultory performance of the stock

Until Friday, the last week was another discouraging and depressed period for most stock prices, with the popular market averages setting new lows for this year and approaching the bottom points reached in 1973.

The Dow-Jones Industrial Average, for instance, descended almost to the 800 level last Wednesday before staging a mild upturn to end the week at 816.65. Its bottom last year was 788.31

BRITISH LAND COMERANT LINESTED

British Land, headed by Mr. John Ritolat, its chairman, has made European expansion a part of its principal objectives; in August 1972, beginning with the creation of its French subsidiary.

The company's actual name does not at all suggest the irica of investment in France. Nevertheless the Director of the French subsidiary. Mr. Matheson, is perfectly clear about his ideas: "We are not speculators, and we have come to France to stay."

The first British Land phase of derelonment in France following the wishes of the parent company and the majority of British investors in France, was concentrated upon the majority of select areas of Paris. The first building bought was 56 Ruc du Faubourg Saint-Honoré from the Société Générale d'Entreprise, who sold the building in order to move, in 1974, to their new headquarters in the suburbs of Paris. The project was completed with the acquisition of the adjacent buildings, including notably the 'Cours aux Antiquaires'. In all, the company owns an area of 30,000 m2 in one of the best parts of Paris. To this, has to be added a small building in the 17th arrondissement. Ruc Ampère, which when completely renovated by September 1974, will give good quality office space, enhanced by the addition of basement parking.

The accord phase began with the search for offices in the provinces. 2,000 m2 of offices was purchased from the Societe d'Amenagement d'Equipement du Nord, in the renovated area of La Madeleine in Litle. Then on to Cetyy-Pontoise at "Les of La Madeleine in Litle. Then on to Cetyy-Pontoise at "Les office building of the floors comprising 6,000 m2, half of which has now been let to the marketing company. Nedsen. A further 2,500 m2 at terracr level has been receous purchased. In Lyon, a building in "Le Tonkin" of 3,000 m2 has been purchased from 13,11,61. The search in the industrial sector has produced in 000 m2 of marchouses and offices at Argenteuil, to the north of Paris, completion of which will be in August 1974.

By the end of the tear the above mentioned buildings will have been completed, and the portfolio will be consolidated and managed to achieve a sound foundation for future growth. The appraisal of potential investments will continue.

Another specially tailored is-any sue is a 20-million Unit-of-Ae-alf count offering for Ireland. The 8.47 10-year loan will carry a coupoo of 9 1.2 percent—terms which are much more generous than what is available to Belgian investors -for whom the loan is tailored on their domestic market.

Subscriptions to the loan are to be paid in Belgian francs, assuring investors in Belgium and Luxembourg of no exchange risk. The borrower could ask for payment in any of the five UA reference currencies of the European nations still linked in the joint currency float. But seeking deutsche marks, for exaniple, would mean an instant loss for Belgian investors since value of one UA is fixed at 3.21 DM or 48.6572 Belgian fraucs. However, at current market rates Belgian investors would have to spend 50 francs for 3.21 DM -or more than the fixed parity Thus, paying in france eliminates this immediate loss as well as any foreign exchange risk. The high coupon and the short life offered on Euroguilder notes keep that market open. Nederlandsche Middenstandsbank is floating 35 million guilders of five-year notes with a coupon of 9 1 2 percent and an issue price of 99. German bankers expect the Euro DM market to open withm the next month and forerast than the first issues will be five to seven-year notes, reflecting in vestor demand-where it existsfor short-term paper.

HOOKED-Rodrigo Valdez stands over Benny Briscoe after scoring knockdown in seventh round with a left book. Fight was slopped soon after Briscoe got up.

Valdez Stops Briscoe to Share Title

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, May agont 5000 included Prince Bai- retained his little last night by 26 (NYT),-Rodrigo Valdez handed one version of the world mindieweight championship lost night with a left book.

The 27-year-old Colombian, who started boxing when a local promoter offered anyone in the stands 10 pesos rabout 40 craisto fight, caught a charging Ecnnie Briscoe with the nook, and then never stopped punctang to score a seventh-round knockou). A sbort right and another lest hook knocked Briscoe to the mat, and although the 31-year-old Philadelphian manageri to get up at the count of E, relered Harry Gibbs of England stopped the bout.

Valdez, at 157 1 2 pounds a quarter-pound heavier than his opponent, earned $50,060-the same as Brucce-and the World Boxing Council title The WEC took away the crown from Carla-Monzon, taking the Argentine at his word that he is retired. The rival World Boxing Association. however, still recognizes Monton,

Alter the fight last right, promoter-actor Alain Delon said that Valdez would defend but tille against Mouzon in September. Except, he seemed to be the only one who thought so. Valder's managers said they are convinced that Monzon will stay retired while, from Buenos Aires, Moncon's promoter. Tito Lectoure said Monzon "is not going to fight with a gur who calls himself chempion." Lectoure did not insist that Monzen was relired. Valdez, who was brought to the United States in 1969 by manager-trainer G:1 Clancer, won a riose decision against Brisco- last September to become Monzon's No. 1 challenger.

Briscoe, after knocking out Tony Mundine of Australia in February, was rated No. 2. And for a while in that seventh round at the Stade Louis II. No. 2 was trying harder. Desoile absorbing punishment from the lirst round, Briscoe had Valdez against the ropes and the Colombian scemed

In the corner Clancey led a chorus imploring Valdez to mote. Instead, out flashed the left hook, sending Briscoe backword.

Ironically, Briscoe had appeared to have changed the tempo of the fight early in the round. In the starting rounds of the cheduled outdoor 15-rounder, Valdez had gained a large advantage with masterful counterpunching. In the first round, leaning against the ropes, he staggered Briscoe with a short

Italian Tennis Has Opening Of Confusion

A Mixup in Dates Postpones Matches

ROME, May 26 (UPI) .-- Fourthseeded Stau Smith and fellow-American Toin Gorman did not compete in today's opening-round matches at the Italian Open tennis championships because of misunderstanding about the tournament's starting date.

Smith, 11th-ranked Gorman and Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico told tournament officials last night that they would not play today because they had not had enough practice. They said thought the tournament would begin tomorrow.

"It was a misunderstanding." said Gianfranco Canieli, secretary general of the organizing com-mittee. "We informed all the tederations in April of the May 25 starting date but realized only last night that not everyons

Only two opening-round matches were played yesterday, howup by qualification-round finals.

"There was a lack of communication as lo when the tournument was supposed to start." said Richard Evans, information director of the Association of Tennis Professionals, Gorman, Smith and Pasarell arrived lata Friday and needed at least two days of practice because this is lineir first tournament on clay this year.

In other off-the-court action yesterday, Jimmy Connors of the United States lost his final bid to play in the Open when the Italian Federation renffirmed its ban on all players who baye competed in the World Team Tennis league. After Connors met with Cameli, the Italian said, "There were absolutely no grounds for a change in the federation's position. The WTT and its players are banned in Italy and that's it. I am sorry for Connors. I am afraid he hasn't fully understood our position, but there is nothing he can

So any spy worth his sait mus oon't miss "Carrie" by Stephen a bon vivant, must know a King (Douhleday, $5.95), a first wines, must play a sharp g novel and one guaranteed to give you a chill

"Carrie" is about a telekinetic girl in a small town in Maine. She is an unhappy girl. Her mother is a horror: a religious fanatic eager to beat the goodness of Christ into sinners with a powerful right hand. No wonder Carrie grows up all but mute. unattractive, shy. She is the butt of jokes in school; she is poorly coordinated; she does not appear to be very bright. But she has strange gifts. Finally, pushed beyond what her emotional state can absorb, she runs psychically amok, unleashing all the latent powers in her. The result is sheer disaster for her and for all around

King does more than tell a story. He is a schoolteacher himseif, and he gets into Carrie's mind as well as into the minds of her classmates. He also knows a thing or two about symbolism -blood symbolism especially. That this is a first novel is amazing. King writes with the kind of sureness normally associated only with veteran writers. ROL/BLACK

While castling king's wing and castling queen's wing some resemblance to each other, they are worlds apart in the problems they create. Although castling in either direction serves the same general purposes ; providing security for the king and mobilizing the rook—the side one castles on deter-mines which of the two is being given greater weight. The two ways of castling are not symmetrical. On the kingside the king ends up at kNI where it is better sheltered from battles raging in the center; on the queenside the rook ends up at Q1 where it can take part at once in the struggle for a center file. Thus, when the primary consideration is the speediest augmenting of an attack in the center, O-O-O may give the best chance of success: when defense is most impor-tant, O-O is usually to be preferred.

Watch That King!

Of course, there are many situations where O-O is employed for defensive purposes, but then it is very often necessary to withdraw the king from the center with K-N1 as soon as possible. Neglect of this precaution on the part of the Dutch player G. Rol in the last round of the Hastings Challengers. Tournament gave the 16-year-old United States mas-ter Mark Diesen the oppor-tunity for a smashing blow that gave him the gave and that gave him the game and

An Interest in Preserving Profanity

waukee Journal

By Nancy L. Ross WASHINGTON (WP), - Like many Americans these days, Reinhold Aman is busy trying to find out what X equals in the presidential ("eXpletive deleted") transcripts. Unlike those who are doing it mainly for titilization, he is doing it for science—the science of linguis-

A professor of medieval German literature at the University of Wisconsin (Milwankee), Mr. Aman, 38, has also become an expert on swearing in 50 languages. These range from an-cient Greek to Sanskrit, Eskimo to his own native Bavarian dia-

He hailed the White House tapes as a "fantastic, wonder-ful new source of swear words," while at the same time expressing disappointment because the transcripts eliminated so many of the choice morsels.

Mr. Aman says he finds it possible to reconstruct a number of them by observing adjacent words. For example, the transcript reveals Mr. Nixon called Robert Kennedy a "ruthless" (characterization omitted: According to the linguist, the tape most probably continues with either "sonofabitch" or "bastard" because these are the nouns most commonly used today in combination with that adjective. "In any case," he said, "you know it isn't 'slob,' or a lot of similar slurs, because no one save 'ruthless slob'

Were he granted access to the tapes in the interest of preserving profanity for posterity, of course—Mr. Aman might well be disappointed in the presidential lack of inventiveness. To hear White House insiders, Mr. Nixon's brand of profamity is standard, four-letter American

"Americans are generally very poor at swearing," said the linguist who can name 250 Bayarian "cuss" words off the top of his head. They just don't know how. It's primitive. They have a very limited swearing vocabulary. It's almost always one out of 25 words and that's about it.

Mr. Aman has found some ressons, the most common being sheer frustration. The truck driver does it because his peers expect him to The teen-ager seeks to sbock his parents. The debutante turned revolutionary sees it as B form of rebellion, The worst reason, according to Washington psychoanalyst Dr. Michael Maccoby, is contempt— a sense of superiority over one's rivals or enemies. He classifies Mr. Nixon's swearing in this category.

Time magazine recently quoted psychologist Paul Cameron as estimating the number of "dirty" words in a construction worker's speech at 24 percent, whereas the white-collar professional uses only 1 percent in the office, 4 percent at parties. Whatever the reason or the amount, stockbroker and hard hat, revolutionary and President use the same words. Advanced education or elevated income apparently neither advance nor elevate one's cursing; gutter language is heard in the penthouse as well as the sewer.

Mr. Aman first became in-terested in swearing, academically speaking, about a decade about 1 200 books and articles on the subject covering a period of 3,000 years. His primary means of discovering profanity in languages he does not know is reading dictionaries. He supplements this study by asking people of various countries and cultures to give him their own dirty words. His findings are due to be published this year under the title "Maledicta: International Bibliography of Pejoration and Verbal Aggres-

Mr Aman declined to state

which language, in his opinion, contains the most and/or the most colorful profanity. But he did make these observations in an interview in his office. (Behind his desk a plaque in Gothic script reads: "Yes, though I walk through the Valley of the Shadow of Death, I shall fear no evil; for I am the meanest son-of-a-bitch in the valley.") · Curses reflect the taboos of particular culture: sex, sacrilege and scatology. In addition they deal with animals, tools, physical handicaps and ancestor desecration. In a prudish society like ours the sexual revolution he (expletive deleted)-obscenity has more impact than in an Indian culture, Blaspherny has more shock value in deeply religious countries. Sometimes curses combine several taboos. Consider this Serbian gypsy

The concepts of God and motherhood are the targets of profanity in almost every cul-ture, Apart from these, Mr. Aman believes the most universal swear word is "dog." The origin of this term of opprobrium lies in the dogs' practice of eating the bodies of dead soldiers after battles in ancient times. Since they are fallen heroes as well as enemies, the curse, for example: "May you copulate with the soul of your dogs got the reputation of committing acts of desecration. When it came to English, where "dog" is known as "man's best friend," it took some language juggling to come up with a canine cuss. Hence the use of "bitch" or she-dog.

 Ancient Greek and Latin literature is replete with swear words (by patricians as well as slaves, as is the Bible, Yiddish more than holds its own. Compared to English, Russian is very rich in obscene swear words. German has more profanity referring to a person's excrement and his stupidity. Latin languages have a variety of pejorative suffixes that can change B decent word into B dirty one, But English in common with German, has no built-in suffix richness and must therefore rely on a limit-ed number of fabricated pre-· Any decent word can be used for swearing. A former pupil of Mr. Aman recounts that the professor has been known to come out with a thundering "Kakel kymmenta yhdeksan!" What sounds like the wrath of the Pharaohs descending upon thy house is in reality Finnish for the number 29. Hindus and Navajo Indians both employ "brother-in-law" as a swear word-often on unsuspecting foreigners who ap-pear flattered until they learn better. Rather han meaning "friend of the family" or some-thing like that, it means. "Your sister has no morals. I slept with your sister; so you and I are brother-in-law." On the contrary. "dirty" words tend to become "laundered" or at least "bleached" through constant usage. The currently faddish American "motherf..." shocks shocks many people. Yet in some segments of society the term is being used as an adjective applied to objects and situations as well as humans, with consequently little more meaning or effect than "damn." Though he does not advocate swearing, Mr. Aman coodones it as an emotional safety valve. Better verbal aggression than

Gloria Swanson Takes PEOPLE: Role of Gloria Swanson

"As soon as I heard they wanted me to play an actress, I figured it was another weirdo," Gloria Swanson, 75, said of her role in "Airport 75." "Producers always think of me in terms of Sunset Boulevard, But I'm not Norma Desmond. I'm not a recluse and I don't live in the past," she told Bob Thomas of the Associated

However, producer Bill Frye and director Jack Smight did not want her to play a "welrdo"—but Miss Swanson still had reservations. She found the dislogue "titale-poo" and suggested that she portray an actress called Gloria Swanson.

Thieves broke into the Moscow home of a friend of Alexander Solzhenitsyn and took his letters, photographs, books and other writings, dissident sources said Saturday. The sources said the theft appeared to have been the work of political agents, since money and valuables were left untouched. The theft occurred when the friend, Neanilla Sucssarova, was keeping an appointment with an anonymous person who had telephoned asking to see her. He didn't keep the appointment, and Miss Snessarova returned to her homs and found her door battered in.
